

I am against any Cable or Phone company being able to gain complete control over internet access. I should be allowed to choose an ISP that I want. I have had the same local internet server since I got my first computer in 1998. I have never wanted to change. I resent that someone is trying to decide that I have to choose another server. Phone and cable companies are making enough money without getting a monopoly on ISPs.

Thank you for your consideration.
